

“Two - Day High Impact Journal Writing and Publishing Workshop” purpose to trained, groom and encourage student and staff to publish their research finding in high impact journals. Nowadays its compulsory for students to publish in high impact journal to graduate master or PhD degree and for staff to fulfil KPI and get promotion or perish. This journal writing and publishing workshop will also provide opportunities to the research officers, science officers, and graduate students to gather and exchange ideas to improve their own writings for publication in high impact journals and to contribute to the improvement of their KPI's. UPM as well as other universities having pressure to publish High Impact Journal papers to increasing their international visibility through research publications and to meet the KPI of universities. This workshop is one of the efforts to encourage and assist researchers, staff and students from UPM and outside UPM to publish their research work in High Impact Journals.

The aim of the workshops is to mentor participants in preparing their research findings for publication in an international journal. 1st day of workshop will deals about using Scopus and Science Direct to evaluate journals, authors and collaborators; Explain about writing good article step by step and how to publish it. 2nd day of workshop will covers; How to build up article before submission, submission process, Reply to reviewer comments and Proof reading. By the end of the 2nd half of the session, all participants will be expected to bring their manuscript to discuss how to improve it and submitted an article for publication to an international peer-reviewed journal in their area of research.
